THE OFFICIAL NEWSLETTER OF THE FACULTY OF MANAGEMENT (LEARNING)

ACOS in 2024: An Overview

By Roula Christodoulides

Thank you for providing me the opportunity to send this message to our current students and Staff at ACOS.

I thank Dr. Chang for providing me with this opportunity to assist him in reaching his goal for this college and seeing his hard work come to fruition.

I have now completed my first year at ACOS as the General Manager of Operations. I can't express enough my gratitude for this opportunity to work with an amazing team and the wonderful and talented students who have honored us by choosing to study here at ACOS.

My background has always been in the domestic market and I underwent a steep learning curve to understand the international students and the sacrifices you have made to be here to better your future and we are extremely grateful for this.

I have seen the college double in students and class numbers. We went from 3 classrooms on level 5 and added another 3 classes to our college, to ensure we give the best opportunities to succeed. We are also expanding our college to another location within our building.

New students Orientation Day last January 30, 2024

We have added more courses to our scope, including 4 new qualifications in Hospitality, and are looking at leasing a commercial kitchen and space to be able to provide you with the best facilities for your learning experience here at ACOS.

Your journey here at ACOS may sometimes be overwhelming but I can assure you that your trainers and all the staff, are here for you.

Congratulations to our GDM class for this initiative in putting together this publication ACOSMOPOLITAN.

Apple Vision Pro: The New Medical Tool

By Mia Bartolome

Apple's new Vision Pro technology represents a significant leap forward in accessibility and inclusivity within the tech industry. As Apple endorses it: "Welcome to the era of spatial computing".

As someone who has always been fascinated by the intersection of technology and human experience, I find this innovation particularly compelling. The ability of Vision Pro to empower individuals with visual impairments by providing real-time auditory descriptions of their surroundings is nothing short of revolutionary.

Reflecting on this advancement, I can't help but marvel at how far we have come since the early days of personal computing. What was once considered science fiction is now a reality, with cutting-edge AI algorithms seamlessly integrating into our daily lives to enhance accessibility for all users.

This precise eye tracking suggests that the device might be very good at conducting patient eye exams in family medicine exam rooms.

Personally, I see Apple Vision Pro technology as a testament to the power of innovation driven by empathy. By prioritizing the needs of individuals with visual impairments, Apple has not only demonstrated its commitment to inclusivity but has also paved the way for a more accessible future in technology.

However, as much as we recognize that these kinds of innovations have paved the way to greater opportunities, we should be aware that innovation alone is not enough. We must also ensure that these advancements are accessible and affordable for all individuals who stand to benefit from them. For what good will it be if it will be out of reach for most people – especially to those who really need it?

Apple Vision Pro technology represents more than just a technological breakthrough is a beacon of hope for a future where accessibility knows no bounds. As we continue to push the boundaries of what's possible, let us never lose sight of the profound impact that innovation can have on people's lives.

Apple's Vision Pro is a tethered headset, though that depends on what's considered "tethered" in this strange new world. It's connected to an external battery, a sleek aluminum pack that will get you two hours of uninterrupted run time. You can also tether the Vision Pro to a Mac, using USB-C, for nonstop Visioning.

Sustainable Modern Living with Tesla Home

By Isagani Macasadia Jr.

Tesla has become a forerunner in revolutionizing the way we power our homes in an era where sustainability and cutting-edge technology intersect. Tesla's home products are transforming the residential landscape with their dedication to sustainable energy and creative solutions.

Leading this green revolution is the perfect integration of beauty and utility found in Tesla's solar panels. Together with the solar panels is a house battery called Tesla's Powerwall, which stores extra energy produced throughout the day for use at times of high demand or during a blackout. In addition to offering a dependable and continuous power source, this also gives homeowners the ability to manage their energy usage.

The integration of the Tesla app, which enables customers to remotely monitor and control their energy consumption, is one of the most notable aspects of the Tesla home ecosystem.

Tesla offers a fully integrated energy product ecosystem. The designers and solar installers will help consumers maintain project timelines while providing the installation support, training, and materials needed for safe installation.

Real-time data on energy production and consumption patterns are available through this intuitive interface, which also enables customers to manage their Powerwall settings from the palm of their hands. Moreover, Tesla is dedicated to sustainability not just in energy production but also in transportation.

Tesla's electric vehicle chargers are available to homeowners who own electric cars, making it easy to recharge their automobiles with sustainable energy from the comfort of their own homes. Beyond just being environmentally friendly, Tesla envisions linked and intelligent living spaces as part of the future of housing.

There are countless opportunities for intelligent, energy-efficient houses as long as Tesla keeps innovating. With Tesla's home solutions, you can embrace the future now and live sustainably while utilising cutting-edge technology.

Tesla's energy products allow homeowners to power their homes with clean energy and protect their homes against power outages. Offer their clients energy security by pairing Powerwall with Solar Roof for a beautiful, minimalist aesthetic or Tesla solar panels for a sleek design and lowest-cost guarantee.

The 1st ACOS Christmas Ball

By Kate Lynne Escobar

The summer heat is taking over Australia hence we all know it is December and it's the bitter-sweet part of the year where, as we wrap and close this chapter, we also gear up to embark on a new one filled with hope to begin and conquer our future endeavors—and so does the Australian College of Studies (ACOS).

The year 2023 has been an overflowing year for the college after it recovered from the pandemic and welcomed numerous students from different nations throughout the year. ACOS by then managed not just to be an ordinary college but to be a home to every International Student. Grateful for the year 2023, ACOS celebrated its year-end party together with its management, faculty members, and students last December 1, 2023, at Cyprus Club, Stanmore.

*The Trainers and Administrators of Australian College of Studies

The atmosphere was set festive in an instant with the laughter of students actively participating in the games that were prepared to warm everyone up. A welcoming message was also delivered by Mr. Dino Sabino who was representing every student. Mr. Sabino expressed our appreciation towards the college for all their effort, assistance, and understanding that they've extended to all of us. He also delivered an update on the college's progress with its newsletter and encouraged everyone to be part of it as he gave a clear view of the path the college was about to take.

The night then became merry as it was penetrated with singing and dancing from the students showcasing their breathtaking and amazing talents. UNITY, the theme of the party was rendered through the incorporation of diverse music, and traditional dance from distinctive countries along with the colorful attires and materials and flags of distant nations. A sumptuous meal of vegan and Mediterranean cuisine was catered and shared among everyone, sufficient to graze everyone up for the rest of the night. And of course, the celebration will never complete without the Bad Santa giving essence for the season of giving. There was an exchange of laughter and fun as the students formed the big circle and passed on the gifts. Were filled with excitement as we tried to guess the item for every gift that we held, and the element of surprise was all over the place as we started unwrapping gifts.

The party was brimming over with gorgeous and striking faces as everyone elegantly and stylishly dressed. But some hit the nail and dressed more than to impress as they confidently wore their suits and dresses making them the Kings and Queens, owning the spotlight for some time during the night. Overall, the party was more than an event rather it was a celebration of life, love, joy, and victory shared among the ACOS family.

We then would like to express our gratitude towards the leadership of Dr. Lionel Chang, Ms. Roula Christodoulides, and Ms. Roohi Rehman, for the unwavering support of all our teachers and the hard work of Mr Reginald Mangilit and his team. Their sleepless nights and dedication paid off with the success of making the party a blast and memorable one. 2023 has been a great year for the college but we welcome a new year with them, looking forward to its growth and expansion for it to help more international student fulfill its Australian Dream.

Aussie Beaches!

By Fella Mae Chavez Cañete

Cronulla Beach, situated in the Sutherland Shire of Sydney, Australia, is a vibrant and popular coastal destination known for its golden sands, rolling waves, and relaxed atmosphere. It holds a special place in the hearts of locals and visitors alike, offering a wide range of recreational activities and amenities.

With its long stretch of pristine shoreline, Cronulla Beach provides ample space for sunbathing, beach games, and leisurely walks along the sand. The beach is divided into several sections, each catering to different preferences. North Cronulla Beach is favored by surfers for its consistent waves and is home to the Cronulla Surf Life Saving Club, which patrols the area to ensure beachgoer safety. South Cronulla Beach is more sheltered and family-friendly, with calmer waters perfect for swimming and snorkelling.

Little Bay Beach, located in Sydney's southeastern suburbs, is a hidden gem known for its tranquil ambiance and natural beauty. Tucked away from the bustling city, this secluded stretch of coastline offers visitors a peaceful escape surrounded by stunning scenery.

With its crescent-shaped shoreline and crystal-clear waters, Little Bay Beach provides the perfect setting for relaxation and recreation. The soft sands invite beachgoers to unwind and soak up the sun, while the calm, sheltered waters are ideal for swimming, snorkeling, and stand-up paddle boarding. The beach is also flanked by rocky cliffs and lush greenery, adding to its secluded charm and providing opportunities for coastal walks and exploration.

Certificate IV In Mental Health

Gratitude and Growth

By Mental Health students with their trainer, Ms. Nazia Begum

Embarking on the journey of studying mental health, we delve into the invaluable role that ACOS colleges and the Trainer Ms. Nazia Begum and support office manager Mr. Reginald Mangilit, and Ms. Roohi played in supporting international students, fostering a conducive environment for academic success, personal growth, and a positive overall college experience. In this article, we explore the profound sense of gratitude and the transformative experiences of being a part of the ACOS college community focused on mental health studies.

Access to Specialized Knowledge:

One reason to feel fortunate as a mental health student is the access to specialized knowledge. The college provides a structured curriculum designed to delve deep into the complexities of mental health, equipping students with the latest research, theories, and practical skills essential for the field.

Students of Certificate IV in Mental Health in their field uniform

Diverse Learning Environment:

Colleges create a diverse and inclusive learning environment where students from various backgrounds converge to study mental health. This diversity enriches discussions, broadens perspectives, and fosters a holistic understanding of mental health issues in different cultural contexts.

Engaging and Supportive Faculty:

The mentorship and guidance provided by faculty MS. Nazia Begum play a pivotal role in shaping the educational experience. Feeling fortunate stems from having engaging and supportive professors who are not only experts in the field but also invested in the success and growth of the students.

Practical Application and Fieldwork:

Mental health studies often involve practical application, including internships, fieldwork, and hands-on experiences. Being part of a college Work Placement program provides opportunities to apply theoretical knowledge in real-world settings, contributing to a well-rounded education that prepares students for future careers.

Access to Research Opportunities:

Colleges often offer research opportunities, allowing students to actively contribute to advancing mental health knowledge. Participation in research projects enhances critical thinking skills, provides exposure to cutting-edge developments, and fosters a sense of contribution to the broader field.

Supportive Campus Resources:

ACOS College typically provides an array of resources tailored to mental health students. From well-equipped libraries to counseling services, these resources contribute to a supportive learning environment, ensuring students have the tools needed to succeed academically and personally.

Feeling fortunate to be part of ACOS College for studying mental health is more than acknowledging academic opportunities; it's about recognizing the transformative power of education. As mental health students, the gratitude for this unique educational journey goes beyond the classroom, shaping a foundation for a fulfilling and impactful career in the dynamic field of mental health.

A Fair Go in the Land Down Under

By Jewel Monique Norte
Trainer: Mark Byron

Nestled within the bustling streets of Parramatta lies the Australian College of Studies, a haven for international scholars pursuing their dreams far from home. You stand there and wonder, what were the things they all had to go through to come here? How a person arrives at a decision and sacrifices to leave their home, family, and cluster of patriotic dreams never fails to make a good story.

ACOS became the avenue of unfolding stories as the campus awakens to the vibrant energy of students from across the globe, each carrying their hopes, fears, and dreams.

Among them, diversity reigns supreme. From seasoned professionals seeking to broaden their horizons to young students setting sail for the first time, each carries the weight of their past and the dreams of their future. Students from around the world intermingle, weaving a tapestry of cultures, languages, and traditions. In the classrooms, the exchange of ideas transcends borders, igniting inspiration and illuminating the path toward academic excellence.

For some, the draw of a fresh start in Australia outweighs the want to be reunited with family and friends back home. Still, they're all in it for the same goal: to make it big in Australia.

Leaving home for the hope of the future is brave but also excruciating. Nights spent in solitude; days passed with minimal contact from those they hold dear. It could feel like an endless misery. However, a strong network of support and companionship within the college grounds provides comfort to those struggling with homesickness. Providing solace and direction to students far from home, the Student Support Services stands proudly at the center of this college. Here, counselors with ocean-sized hearts offer solace to individuals struggling with loneliness by listening and embracing their emotions. They mend the students' pining and resolve with compassionate words and laughter, encouraging those longing for home to find strength and perseverance.

Suddenly, there came a feeling of togetherness. Homesickness is overshadowed by the brightness of optimism and perseverance by the unfaltering support of the college and the embrace of newfound friends. Every day, the international students at ACOS prove, with their dedication, that they can overcome any obstacle that stands in their way of taking advantage of the once-in-a-lifetime fair go in the land down under. In the embrace of their new home, they find the courage to weather the storms of homesickness and the strength to spread their wings and soar toward their dreams.

HOW I BALANCE MY LIFE AS AN INTERNATIONAL STUDENT, EDUCATOR, AND EXPLORER

By Ivannah Estacio
Trainer: Ms Pooja Jaidka

When I decided to move abroad as an international student, my mind was filled with excitement, curiosity, and the desire for a fresh start and a chance to grow intellectually and personally. The opportunities that awaited, the eagerness to explore and travel, and the craving for a new life were the things that came to mind.

Some of the reasons why I chose to move to Australia are the high quality of education, exposure to diverse cultures, and food, and meeting new people with different nationalities.

In this article, I will share how I successfully balance my life as a student, educator, and explorer, finding fulfillment in each role. Balancing the roles of a student, educator, and explorer can be both challenging and rewarding.

A student taking Certificate IV in Early Childhood Education and Care with some kids doing a story telling activity

First, Effective time management is important to make sure that each aspect of life receives the attention it deserves. Second, using calendars and to-do lists makes my hectic schedule greatly reduced and makes things neat and organized. Third, by maintaining discipline I can stay focused and committed to my realistic goals, which helps me overcome challenges and easily accomplish my goals. Fourth, if I'm in doubt I never hesitate to ask for support from my friends, instructors, colleagues, and the people whom I can trust.

Lastly, taking time for self-care and relaxation helps reduce my stress and recharge my mind and body. Engaging in activities like yoga, regular exercise, and taking pleasure in my walk in nature.

Life in Australia as an international student and childcare educator is a complicated journey that is full of opportunities for growth, success, and challenges. Resilience, commitment, and a love of learning and caring for kids are necessary for finding a balance between my career goals and my studies. Despite the difficulties, the combination of these roles gives me many chances for growth on my personal and professional levels, and improving the lives of children.

The Completer's Note

As I write this message today, my heart swells with gratitude and nostalgia. My journey at the Australian College of Studies (ACOS) has been nothing short of remarkable. 🌟

From the very beginning, ACOS embraced me with open arms. I had a beautiful two-year journey pursuing a Graduate Diploma in Management Learning at ACOS. The tireless support from my classmates, the unwavering encouragement of my instructor, Mr. Irshad Cader, and the camaraderie within our ACOS family made my experience truly memorable.

I want to express my deepest gratitude to you, Sir, for your unwavering support. Your belief in me has fortified my strength and instilled in me a confidence that will propel me to achieve greater things in life.

I vividly recall the guidance of my super-helpful instructor, who not only imparted knowledge but also guided and inspired me to achieve my goals. Thanks to his mentorship, I secured my first job at a renowned NGO and now at a State Government- a milestone I'll forever cherish.

Balancing the roles of a mother, a student, and a part-time worker was no small feat, yet the ACOS family made it feel seamless. The burden never weighed me down; instead, it propelled me forward. From my classmates to my instructor and the ACOS administrators, you all supported me in one way or the way to be where I am today. The journey would not have been possible without you all. Thank you for being an integral part of me.

As I bid adieu, let me assure you: this is not the end. Our paths may diverge, but destiny has a way of intertwining lives. As I step into the future, I am comforted by the knowledge that I am not alone - I carry a piece of each one of you with me. May our journeys intersect again someday, and until then, let's carry the spirit of ACOS with us.

To my fellow GDM colleagues, remember: the sky is the limit. Soar high, chase your dreams, and create ripples of impact wherever you go.

Thank you for being part of my journey! Wishing you all the best in your future ventures. Farewell, ACOS-I'll hold you close in my heart. 🙌💕

P.S.: If you ever spot a rainbow, think of our vibrant ACOS family — it's a reminder that even after the rain, there's always a spectrum of hope.
